Railroads Are Growling at One Another Over G. A. R.

A passenger rate war is on and the rate situation on account of the G. A. R. encampment at Boston gives promise of a number of startling surprises before the time for the encampment. The passenger rates are in a very unsettled condition between the lines operating between Chicago and Boston, and the indications are that the rate war will spread to the lines operating west of Chicago.

Because at least two thousand Kansans are planning to go to Boston on the low rates for this encampment, the rate war is of vital interest in this state.

Kansans say, "Let them fight." And at the present time it looks like a fight to the finish.

An agreement was reached between the lines of the finish.

It is hard to guess what effect this would have on the rates. If the fight shouldever reach that stage, it is likely that still further cutting would result.

Then also the western roads would be drawn into the fight.
